

Be an Inventor

Archie Featherspoon was an inventor. He created snappy stretch overalls, a spring-fed, rock-a-bye bed, bear powder, and high-flying rainbow rockets.

You can be an inventor, too. Tap into your imagination to create your own invention.

Materials needed: Old magazines, scissors, a large piece of paper or cardboard, glue, crayons, markers, or pencils.

Cut out pictures of interesting objects. Use your crayons, markers, or pencil and your pictures to create an invention of your own. Don't forget to give it a snappy name.

OR

With permission, gather together some things from around the house. String, ribbon, paper towel rolls, toilet paper rolls, paper clips, buttons, rubber bands, wood scraps, craft sticks, anything that you could use to make an invention of your own.

Once you have the materials you need, use your imagination to build a new invention.

Don't forget to clean up after yourself!
